

CNDH Moz.

Civil Society Action to Advance Citizenship, Business and Human Rights in Cabo Delgado and Nampula Provinces

CNDH Moz is a project led by CDD, with funding from the European Union under the Active Citizenship Programme, which seeks to strengthen inclusive and participatory democracy in Mozambique.

It operates in Palma and Montepuez in Cabo Delgado, and Moma and Angoche in Nampula, supporting community participation in public and business decisions that affect people's lives.

● HOW WE WORK

01

Dialogue and accountability

Bring government, business and civil society together to ensure that community concerns inform decisions and encourage business practices that respect human rights.

02

Capacity and inclusion

Strengthen local organisations' advocacy and public policy monitoring capacities, with particular attention to women, young people and persons with disabilities.

03

Community participation

Support consultations, youth initiatives and two pilot initiatives for dialogue, negotiation and mediation between communities and businesses.

● EXPECTED RESULTS

An annual Business and Human Rights Index, studies, training, community radio and digital campaigns, and monitoring reports. These tools will support access to information, follow-up on commitments and participation in public policy processes. The approach prioritises gender equality, accessibility and social inclusion. By connecting local experience with provincial and national dialogue, the project seeks to make institutions and companies more responsive to the concerns raised by communities.

● WHO IMPLEMENTS THE PROJECT

The consortium comprises CDD, the Institute for Multiparty Democracy, the Forum of Mozambican Associations of Persons with Disabilities, Fanelo Ya Mina, the Regional Arbitration Centre and Oxfam.

OUR OBJECTIVE

To strengthen communities' voice and ability to influence decisions, defend their rights and demand accountability, helping ensure that natural resource development benefits communities.
